Historical Note — A Home with Heritage

This row of homes was originally known as Wesley Terrace, reflecting Whitburn's rich Methodist history and its proximity to the 19th-century Wesley Chapel. The street's name was officially changed to North Guards by South Tyneside Council, but the sense of history remains.

A notable former resident is Septimus "Sep" Smith, born here in 1912. Sep Smith went on to become an English international footballer, earning his England cap in 1935. His legacy adds an extra layer of cultural significance to this already distinguished terrace.

Summary

This is more than just a house — it's a rare opportunity to own a piece of Whitburn's story. Whether you are a first-time buyer, an investor, or a growing family, 81 North Guards offers location, potential, and provenance in one of the North East's most desirable villages. Don't miss your chance to bring new life to a home rich in character and history.
